Meade, I noved from Petersburg by the shortest practicable road to the left of Deatonville, with the object of there taking position on the left of the 2d Corps, striking the road from Destonville to Burks' Station, at a point a little to the south of the former place. I found that the 2d Corps was engaged to the frgnt and right, and cavalry heavily to my left. Going down the road towards Burks' Station, perhaps a mile, and running sharply to the right, I proceeded across towards a nearly parallel road on which the enemy was moving and along which he had thrown up a line of entrenchpants. As soon as the leading division of General Seymour could be formed, it was moved on the road held by the enemy, which was carried. Then turning to the left it was advanced down the road, against pretty strong resistance. By this time Wheston's division had got in position as rapidly as possible on Seymour's left, when the lines were again advanced, and were swept down the road for a distance o' about two miles. Arriving at a deep and diffi-cult creek, we found the enemy had reformed his line on the opposite side, where weattacked and drove him to a point a dis tance of half a mile further. In the first at-tack a portion of cavalry operated on our right flank. In its subsequent attack a mass of cavairy operated on our left and right flank of the enemy.
